Local Lessons

- ✓ RELATIONSHIPS ARE CRUCIAL. It takes time to develop the trust and understanding for effective collaboration throughout the community
- ✓ FLEXIBLE AND REPRESENTATIVE LEADERSHIP DRIVES IMPLEMENTATION. Partners must be willing to self-reflect, accept external feedback, and be open to transforming organizational processes in the service of shared goals.
- ✓ PAYMENT REFORM IS NECESSARY. Until changes to public funding models (i.e., Medicaid) are made, efforts toward collaborative prevention and health promotion strategies will turn to philanthropic sources. As these sources are unreliable as long-term options, public funding allocations for early childhood mental health programs are needed to promote sustainability across the sector.
- ✓ COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT MUST BE CULTURALLY RESPONSIVE. Service providers need to demonstrate an authentic commitment to continuously listen, reflect, and honor cultural differences
- ✓ SUSTAINING COLLABORATION TAKES INTENTION. Despite all the time invested in relationships and collaboration, it is easy to lose that after funding or even a key leader leaves.

Roadmap Vision and Values

To ensure that all Jefferson County families have the support they need to promote their children's health and well-being for sustained success in school and in life, helping to make a bright future for Jefferson County.

Strong Families, Strong Community

Thriving children and families are a critical part of a thriving community. Working together to nurture families from all backgrounds, abilities, and life circumstances is an important strategy to ensuring a bright future for Jefferson County.

Equitable, High-Quality Experiences

Quality prenatal care and early childhood experiences, delivered in an equitable manner, develop the socialemotional and cognitive skills all children need to be successful.

Supported Adults Across Community

Children will succeed with supported and engaged parents, caregivers, educators, health professionals and other adults. Partners across the community must be aligned and working toward shared goals to ensure adults are successfully supporting children.

Sustained Commitment and Coordinated Services

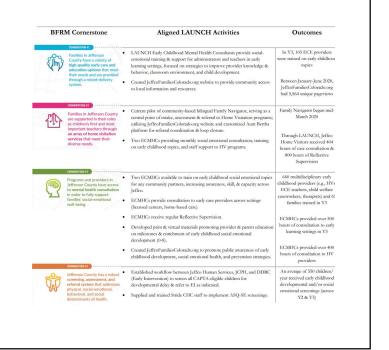

To be successful, Jefferson County leaders and community stakeholders must work together, across sectors and settings, and over the long-term to provide comprehensive education, prevention, early intervention, and treatment services.

Continuous Improvement

Using common metrics for success and data-driven evaluation, we can continue to improve supports and services to ensure Jefferson County is a great place to raise a family.
